Dear Hiring Manager,

I have a multi-lingual and multi-cultural background as I was born in Poland, but moved to California at a young age. I am back in Poland for now, but enjoy traveling and working remotely. I also speak and write Polish, and can translate from Polish to English, although my specialty is writing and editing for an American or English-speaking audience.

I have a journalism background and education, but moved from covering general news or topics related to daily headlines into more specialised writing. With over a decade of technical writing, content strategy, and documentation expertise bridging complex engineering teams and global end-users, I specialize in transforming intricate software systems, APIs, and developer tools into clear, structured, and friction-free documentation.

Throughout my career—including authoring developer guides and technical documentation for platforms like CKSource, structuring cloud integration walkthroughs for Pluralsight, and researching enterprise software for BairesDev—I have focused on eliminating the communication gap between code and user adoption. Having written and reported for prominent technology and developer platforms including TouchArcade, TechTimes, and Macworld, I bring a natural fluency in distilling complex technical updates and release notes into precise, accessible resources.

Whether I am interviewing lead software engineers to document technical workflows, writing standard operating procedures, or leading localization and content strategy for SaaS products like InvoiceOcean, my core objective remains constant: reducing user friction and enabling seamless product adoption.

I am eager to bring this same rigorous, detail-oriented approach to your team to help elevate your technical documentation and developer resources. Thank you for your time and consideration; I look forward to discussing how my background aligns with your goals.

Sincerely,

Maciej Duraj
